CHG Healthcare Appoints Brett Sanford Director of Internal Controls

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (August 29, 2006)—CHG Healthcare Services, one of the nation's oldest and largest healthcare staffing firms, has named D. Brett Sanford director of internal controls.

Sanford's focus will be on the company's financial reporting and regulatory compliance-related activities. He has worked in similar capacities with other growing Utah-based companies including Morinda Holdings in Provo and Flying J Communications in Ogden.

"We are delighted to have such an accomplished accounting and finance professional join our company," commented Michael Weinholtz, president and CEO of CHG Healthcare. "The addition of Brett to our management team is reflective of the growing importance of, and our ongoing commitment to, strong internal controls and improved business processes."

"I'm very excited to join CHG Healthcare," Sanford said. "This is a progressive, forward-thinking company. It has a culture that embraces change and is committed to continuous improvement."

A senior finance professional and certified public accountant, Sanford holds a Bachelor of Science degree in psychology and a Masters of Accountancy from Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.
