JetBlue Founder and CEO, David Neeleman, Makes Guest Appearance at CompHealth Norwalk Office

Norwalk, Connecticut (March 16, 2006)—CompHealth, a CHG Healthcare Services company, will host a guest appearance by JetBlue founder and chief executive officer, David Neeleman, at its Norwalk, Connecticut office on Friday, March 17.

Neeleman accepted a speaking invitation to address CompHealth employees as the finale to a quarterly sales training event. The purpose of Neeleman's presentation is to reward, inspire and motivate the Norwalk office employees, according to John Giglietta, vice president in the CompHealth physician search division, which provides permanent placement staffing services to medical doctors around the country. In addition to Norwalk, the CompHealth physician search division has offices in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, Rosemont, Illinois, and Salt Lake City, Utah.

"It is an office initiative for 2006 to host a team building event every quarter and incorporate a motivational speaker. Mr. Neeleman will be the first guest speaker to participate and we cannot be more thrilled," Giglietta said.

While Giglietta kept Neeleman's visit a secret from his employees, he did provide them with clues to help guess the mystery guest. Each clue was a cryptic message such as, "Keep your eye in the sky," and "green plus yellow." The final clue was a reference to the vintage television game show, "What's My Line?"

"Several people guessed JetBlue and the excitement and anticipation in the office has peaked," Giglietta continued. "I'm just grateful for Mr. Neeleman's generosity. It speaks volumes about the kind of person he is, as a business leader and as a leader in our community."

The media is invited to attend Neeleman's presentation, which will be held at CompHealth from 3 to 4 p.m. at 10 Norden Place, Suite 200; (800) 586-5015. This event is not open to the general public.
